

From Tori Haring-Smith
Brown University

Self-Evaluation Sheet to Accompany
Essay for Peer Response or Instructor's Evaluation

Author: In order to help your instructor or peer reader evaluate this essay, you should explain where you are in the writing process. Be as specific as possible in answering the following questions.

1. What are you trying to say in this paper? What is your main idea?
2. Who might be interested in reading this paper?
3. What do you like best in the paper?
4. What do you like least in your paper?
5. What would you work on if you had 24 hours more to spend on the project?
6. What three questions would you like to ask your reader? How can your reader help you develop the paper further?